COMPANY PORTRAYAL

UNIROL MUSIC has been founded in 2006, having as a starting point my eagerness to bring a fresh look at a very wrong but unfortunately still very widespread idea, more precisely that the cost of a band, as well as the number of the band members reflects undoubtedly the high quality of the music they perform. Throughout the services provided by my company, I want to prove how terribly wrong this idea is, in spite of the fact that it is deeply rooted in the public's mind.

The headstones I have built UNIROL MUSIC on are worth considering: professionalism, talent, experience, thoroughgoing University studies in music, sound directing and music informatics combined with self-education, high quality of the music and of the equipment used, seriousness, reliability, punctuality, as well as selfless dedication, aiming to achieve the greatest party sensations ever. All these are being offered to you at a price beyond any expectations! I am a perfectionist, as well as a person who is always pushing his own limits, and I am sure you will fully discover these features in the services provided by my company.

All throughout my carrier I have met all kind of people, having all kinds of musical likes and dislikes and of course having all kinds of expectations. That is the reason why I always do my best to offer people what I myself would like to be offered when it comes to music. I myself have gone through the wonderful and at the same time the terribly tough experience of my own wedding, so I am perfectly aware of what it means to wish from the bottom of your heart at everything would come out just perfect. There are so many people who can proudly tell they have had a fairy tale like wedding party thanks to my performance and they can all testify that I can truly bring any event to a much higher level than anyone would think or expect or dare dream about. With each wedding party, with each event I am invited to perform at, I don't cease to prove that the best music should not necessarily be the most expensive one as well, just the same as the most wonderful weddings should not necessarily be the most expensive ones.

Ultimately, having a stylish wedding party should not necessarily be a question of money! I have come up with solutions to all different styles, solutions for each wedding party or event, solutions for each couple or individual. The best part is that these are all affordable solutions! For people having more classical or traditional taste in what music is concerned, I can offer the "oldies but goldies". On the other hand, young people having a special taste for the music of out times will be very far from being disappointed, especially because I belong to their generation and so I know very well how to fulfill their expectations.

For each and every event, I prefer to choose the songs I perform in such a way as to create a perfect combination between oldies and the latest hits, in order to please every generation. My profession is to make you feel - through my music which gets to stir the air all around - that you are indeed at the right place, at the right time, at the most important event of your life. The fantastic atmosphere created by the highest quality music must sweep you off your feet immediately on entering the hall. There are some details which give an entirely unique personality to an event and I dare say that music is the most important of them all. Even so, the price will be a pleasant surprise for the great time you'll receive in return.

Personally, I have never performed for money, mostly out of principle, because money has never been my first priority. My aim has always been to make people enjoy themselves, to make them enjoy listening to my performance, to make sure they take home a beautiful and long lasting memory, to make them carry the beloved melodies in their minds and souls for a long time afterwards. That is absolutely not possible to achieve if it's money you keep in front of your eyes. I love to sing and perform in front of the public - this is what I know, this is what I have studied over the years, this is what I do for over 18 years, so this is a tremendous part of my life. That is why I don't feel like it is a job on the contrary I feel this is my calling. When you put everything into your profession, body and soul, your entire being and all the best that is in you, then people feel that for sure. When you do it all for money, then people feel that also, but in the worst way possible.

It comes natural to put a price on what I do, as this is my profession and this is the way I earn my living. I have made huge investments in this profession, a lot of money and time and soul, and I will never stop investing. All these are impetuously needed in order to create high quality music, to which high quality equipment is to be added of course, not mentioning the endless sacrifice... Still, I have always been guided by the strong belief that it is all worthwhile if your music can bring moments and hours of joy and high spirits to the people who listen to your music, no matter where or when. Fortunately, I have never failed in entertaining people.

You can always recognize a true artist by the feeling of happiness, harmony, and great mood that he can pass on to you through his music. There are two things you must know how to combine in order to achieve a memorable event showing an astonishingly unique style: Choosing the musician first of all and afterwards choosing all the other details which give personality to the event. Sometimes I just wonder how incredibly easy it is for me to create a warm, friendly, welcoming atmosphere right from the beginning, and a raging, unrestrained party atmosphere not much later. The large experience I have gathered throughout the years has taught me that, based on my talent thorough and continuous learning, eagerness to offer people as much as possible in what music and entertainment is concerned, I can play with sounds, harmony and melody until I achieve the perfect atmosphere. I have fully realized that everything around me must give away rhythm, harmony, quality and stylishness, always in the spirit of giving.

People notice that immediately, they appreciate and go home in the end being pleased like never before with the performance they have witnessed and enjoyed. This is a feeling which they inevitably pass on to me, so that I myself can be pleased with the show I have performed, and with all that I have achieved and offered to people. It is truly beyond any value to create an atmosphere that is simply radiant of unprecedented harmony, rhythm, joy, happiness, wellness and great mood because ultimately this is what gives you enough self-confidence to rightfully call yourself an Artist. The incredibly large number of people who welcome me always with so much appreciation and thankfulness – which I earned in time by the ever-growing success achieved with every wedding party, ball and so many other events – keep on reassuring me that I am a musician truly capable of creating not just a great day – I couldn't even think of being satisfied with such a common classification – but a really unforgettable day, the kind you carry with you and cherish always. I have fully understood that every person is different.

That is precisely why I know that every event must have a different "appeal". In my profession, I am used to offering always the highest quality music, paying attention to the accessibility of the price standard at the same time. By getting in contact with UNIROL MUSIC, you will be surprised to discover that one musician only can offer you a musical experience to outrun with an unprecedented success the quality of the music provided to you by any other band, regardless of the number of their members. The quality of the music that I offer you, as well as the absolutely fantastic party atmosphere that I guarantee cannot be compares to any other band you have ever seen in performance or you have ever listened to so far. Moreover, the price is astonishingly accessible!
